

SUCH N SUCH

DJ / PRODUCER

ABOUT

A multifaceted musician from the south side of Chicago, SUCH N SUCH is a multi-dimensional staple of the musical community. In the past 5 years, he has co-existed in both Chicago and Washington, D.C., as a producer, trumpet player, DJ, engineer, and teacher in his field. At an early age, SUCH N SUCH began his career as a producer and has continued to utilize the skills he's accumulated from mentors and studio settings to branch into other avenues of music. However, it wasn't until high school, that his love of crate digging inspired him to become a DJ. After joining the musical collective - SaveMoney - he quickly became the resident DJ & Producer for Chance The Rapper, as well as other members of the group. Around this time, he also began to explore traditional music by playing trumpet in his high school band - while also turning out multiple production placements with artist, such as Saba, Mick Jenkins, and many more. SUCH N SUCH prides himself on being diverse in his music selection while also being able to deliver genre specific sets for any client.

After interning in studios in New York, Los Angeles, and Scratch DJ Academy, the 24-year-old musician is finishing his formal training in music education at Howard University and plans to take full residency as a teaching musician in Chicago.
